

MATERIAL STUDY

Why linen, every time

Linen is made from flax, one of the oldest cultivated fibres on earth, and almost nothing has improved on it for warm weather. The fibre is hollow, so it breathes and wicks; it conducts heat away from the body; and it relaxes into a soft, lived-in crease that cotton can only fake. Crucially for a calm home, it ages up — every wash makes it softer and more beautiful, the opposite of synthetics that age into landfill. Buy it pale, buy it once, and let the years do the rest.

"The only cloth that looks better the day after you forgot to iron it."