

THE SUMMER COOL-DOWN

Eight small moves

Nearly all of it free. Tear this page out, or don't.

- Open one door and commit to leaving it open.
 - Roll up the heavy rug; let the bare floor run to the light.
 - Strip the bed to a single washed-linen layer.
 - Hang one sheer linen panel where a heavy curtain was.
 - Clear one whole end of the table and keep it clear.
 - Steep a jug of cold barley tea tonight for tomorrow.
 - Make one seat half-outside — your improvised engawa.
 - Take one slow breakfast at the open door. Phone elsewhere.
