

THE ROOM

The room that gathers

Summer's room opened outward; autumn's turns back in. Built around a warm centre — a table, a low light, the wool returned — it is a room made to hold people, and to hold the dark gently off.